

Anna Held Says One Should Marry For Love Only, and Man Be the Master

To Stay Married Congeniality Is Necessary—If the Wife Err, She Should Be Forgiven, for She Is the Weaker of the Two.

Couples Ought Not to Be Separated for Any Length of Time—Jealousy the Cause of All Trouble—Happiest Marriages Among the Poor.

"Now, please," began Miss Held, with a small point of protest, "please do not ask me to talk about my divorce. Because Mr. Ziegfeld and I are such very good friends, and it is only a little matter quite between ourselves."

MISS HELD'S VIEWS OF MARRIAGE REQUESTED.

"Of course," I assented, with the nonchalance evidently demanded of me. "Do one takes divorce seriously nowadays. But I called to extract your views on marriage, Miss Held."

The petite lady dropped gracefully into the corner of a pale-green sofa, which harmonized perfectly with the tailored creations of case au lait and Allice blue, which she was wearing. For the moment, the misbehaving brown eyes were pensive and pondering. I had time to notice that apparently she cannot either Miss Held, nor domestic difficulties worry her. She is as fair and smooth and round and delicately tinted as ever.

But now she smiled, and spoke in the caressing voice, with the delicate foreign intonation which her admirers know so well. What perhaps they do not know is that Miss Held's mental processes have that Gallic lucidity and freedom from cant which never ceases to alarm the Anglo-Saxon sentimentalist.

For said she: "Marriage is sometimes very nice indeed. But that is where there is an agreement in interests and aims between the husband and wife. Sometimes this agreement does not exist. Sometimes each looks forward and plans a quite different future from that desired by the other. Then they cannot stay any longer to be husband and wife. When they are separated in fact, why should they not be separate in name?"

I was too pleased to interrupt, and she continued: "I cannot understand these society people who will not get a divorce because of the scandal. Scandal, what is that? Puff! And also they forget—if a man and woman are unhappy together, they cannot conceal it. The world will see, the world will talk—the divorce will make more talk."

DIVORCE MORE-DIGNIFIED THAN FIGHTING.

"To me it seems so much better, so much more dignified, than the continual quarrels and fights. If a husband and wife cannot be happy with each other, they ought to separate. Then, perhaps, each may find some one else with whom he or she can be happy. Or if agreement with any one is impossible because of the temperaments, then there can be the living apart. Oh, I think it is wicked for a marriage to be a chain!"

"I quite agree with you, Miss Held," I said, "but you wouldn't do away with marrying altogether, would you?"

The pretty head shook in vehement denial. "No, indeed!" she exclaimed, "I believe always in the marriage for love. If from the beginning there is love between the husband and wife, the other things, money, a home, a position in the world, can be gained somehow. Of course, by love I mean the affection that includes congeniality. No marriage is happy where the husband and wife cannot be chums, comrades, friends. That means they must like the same sort of people, be interested in the same sort of things. It is very sad when there is nothing the husband and wife can discuss together."

"That is one reason why I do not believe in marrying out of one's class. There may be a very strong temporary attraction between a rich girl and a poor young man, but it will not last."

"They will tire of each other because they have been brought up differently. They will quarrel because they have almost no points in common, and because they disagree in so many ways."

"Happiness is more probable when a rich man marries a poor girl, because the husband should always be stronger and wiser and more efficient than his wife. Perhaps I am old-fashioned, but I think the wife can look up to her husband in the happiest. He ought to be master in his own house or there will be continual confusion. How would a business get along without one person at the head of it? What would a republic do without a president? The husband's will should be law, but—Miss Held smiled enchantingly—when the wife disobeys or makes a mistake she should be forgiven, just because she is the weaker."

HUSBAND AND WIFE SHOULD REMAIN INSEPARABLE.

"I believe you think that husband and wife should spend most of their time under the same roof," I suggested. For this remark of Miss Held's was once reported from Paris: "If Mr. Ziegfeld wants to keep his wife, he'd better come and take care of her!"

She has evidently not changed her opinion. "Yes, indeed, the husband and wife should be together," she asserted earnestly. "We have a French proverb, you know, 'From the eyes, from the mind,' and I think it very true. I do not mean that married people should spend every minute with each other, giving up all independence of movement. But they should meet every day. Even with the love that is deep in the heart, there may be a certain forgetfulness when absences are long."

"For her own sake, a woman should always be attractive and nicely dressed, but it will take other attributes to keep her husband. He can find pretty women in pretty toilettes everywhere. And he will smile at them and return home, if only his wife is in some way different, if she has an originality, an attraction which drew him in the first place and which he will never succeed in finding elsewhere.

CARE SHOULD BE TAKEN NOT TO AROUSE JEALOUSY.

"Also the pretty wife has to be careful not to arouse her husband's jealousy. She may be very much admired, but she must not seem to know it, and she must Witness Says She Will Answer a Man, but Not a Woman Lawyer.

Miss Lucille Pugh is to defend Roy Polindexter, a negro to go on trial tomorrow on a murder charge. One of the main witnesses is Florence Brown, in the House of Detention. She has told Miss Pugh:

"Young woman, you may be a suffragist, but I'm not. I won't answer questions put to me by a woman lawyer. That's a job for a man, and I'll take a man to get me to answer questions. You ought to be home washing dishes."

CYANIDE CHICKEN NOT GOOD EATING, SO OWNER SUES

Hasselmann Says Angry Neighbor Poisoned Fowl and Sues for $15,000.

His digestion was ruined because his chickens were dosed with cyanide of potassium to punish them for trespass, says Arthur Hasselmann, and so he brought suit yesterday in the Supreme Court, White Plains, for $15,000 damages against Prof. James Peabody, who teaches biology in the Morris Heights High School. Plaintiff and defendant are neighbors in Carmine avenue, Arthur Manor, Scarsdale.

Hasselmann's fad is chicken raising. He keeps a lot of them. The Professor's pride is his garden, which he tends in person and from which he hopes to supply his table with vegetables. He kept the earth so loose and fresh that the chickens liked the garden better than anything they had at home. They scratched up everything the Professor had planted.

The Professor, it is said, warned Hasselmann that he would pop off the chickens with a gun unless they were kept out of the garden, and one day bore out his threat by sending to Hasselmann, with his compliments, a chicken he had shot.

But bullets failed to stop the visits, and the Professor decided to dispose of the flock in mass by poison, it is charged. Hasselmann says that Peabody put out a pan in which cyanide of potassium had been mixed with bran. Some chickens ate it and died. Hasselmann says he did not know the cause of death and in due course he killed and ate some of the survivors, whose flesh had been impregnated with the poison. As a result his

Fat Women, This Month Should Interest You

This kind of weather is the very kind fat people should take advantage of and remove their fat without any fear of exhausting themselves. Go to your druggist, no matter where you live, and buy a case of the famous Marmola Tablets. Just the same as the world-renowned Marmola Prescription, and take one of these tablets after each meal. Your fat will disappear at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces per day, and you will correct the digestive failure of your system so that they will no longer turn your food into fat. They will make you stronger and they will not harm any one. No matter whether you eat at home or away from home, your Marmola Tablets can always be carried, and you will thus be free from any worry about that which you eat. These tablets will stop all fat-making, and the beauty of them lies in the fact that they will not leave bare wrinkles after the fat goes away. If you will try them just one week you will become one of the thousands to whom we can refer you. Marmola Tablets for sale by all druggists everywhere, or, if you prefer, send the price of a case ($5.00) to The Marmola Company, 184 Farmer Field, Detroit, Mich., and they will send some to you by return mail in plain package.

health has been permanently impaired. When the shooting of the one chicken and the poisoning of the others became known, the S. P. C. A. got after Peabody, and he was fined $10. The damage suit probably will be called for trial today.

This is an invitation that no thin man or woman can afford to ignore. We'll tell you why. We are going to give you a wonderful discovery that puts solid flesh on people who are thin and underweight, no matter what the cause may be—that makes brain in five hours and blood in four—that puts the red corpuscles in the blood which every thin man or woman so sadly needs. How can we do this? We will tell you. Science has discovered a remarkable concentrated treatment which increases cell growth. A very substance of which our bodies are made—a treatment that makes indigestion and other stomach troubles disappear and gives you a healthy, strong, old dyspeptic or a sufferer from weak nerves or lack of vitality feel like a 2-year-old. This new treatment, which has proved a boon to every thin person, is called Sargol. Don't forget the name—Sargol—Sargol—Sargol.

But you say, "I have tried everything and I have failed." Here is the statement of those who have tried—who have been cured—who will swear to the virtues of this marvelous preparation.

REV. GEORGE W. DAVIS says: "I have made a faithful trial of the Sargol treatment and must say it has brought to me new life and vigor. I have gained twenty pounds and now weigh 170 pounds, and, what is better, I have gained the days of my boyhood. It has been the turning point of my life. My health is new life. I don't have to take any medicine at all and never want to again."
